PART I - ATTEMPTS

4 Definition of attempt.

- (1) An attempt to commit an offence is an act done or omitted with intent to commit that offence forming part of a series of acts or omissions which would have constituted the offence if such series of acts or omissions had not been interrupted by the voluntary determination of the offender not to complete the offence or by some other cause.
- (2) A person who attempts to commit an offence by any means shall not be acquitted on the ground that by reason of the imperfection or other condition of the means or by reason of the circumstances affecting the person against whom or the thing in respect of which the crime was intended to be committed it was not possible to commit the crime according to his intent.

Illustrations

A points a gun at B believing it to be loaded and meaning immediately to discharge it at him. A is guilty of an attempt to harm B although the gun is not, in fact, loaded.

A puts his hand into B's pocket intending to steal. A is guilty of an attempt to steal although there is nothing in the pocket.

5 Punishment for attempts.

- (1) Every person who attempts to commit any offence punishable by imprisonment shall (unless the punishment for an attempt to commit such offence is otherwise expressly specified by law) be liable to imprisonment for a period not exceeding one-half of the longest period to which a person actually committing that offence might be lawfully sentenced.
- (2) Every person who attempts to commit any offence punishable by fine shall (unless the punishment for an attempt to commit such offence is otherwise expressly specified by law) be liable to a fine not exceeding one-half of the maximum fine which a person who had actually committed the said offence might be sentenced to pay.

6 Conviction for attempt on charge of offence

Where the complete commission of the offence charged is not proved but the evidence establishes an attempt to commit the offence, the accused person may be convicted of this attempt and punished accordingly:

Provided that after a conviction for the attempt the person so convicted shall not be liable to be tried again for the offence which he was charged with committing.

7 Conviction for attempt when full offence proved.

Where an attempt to commit an offence is charged but the evidence established the commission of the full offence the accused shall not be entitled to be discharged but he may be convicted of the attempt and punished accordingly:

Provided that after a conviction for the attempt the accused person shall not be liable to be tried again for the offence which he was charged with attempting to commit.

PART II.- ABETMENT, HARBOURING CRIMINALS, CONSPIRACY, ETC.

8 Abetment of crime and punishment of abettor.

Every person who directly or indirectly commands, incites, encourages or procures the commission of an offence by any other person and every person who knowingly does any act for the purpose of facilitating the commission of an offence by any other person is an abettor and shall (unless otherwise expressly specified by any enactment)—

- (a) where the offence is actually committed in pursuance or during the continuance of such abetment be liable to the same punishment as if he himself had actually committed that offence; and
- (b) where the offence is not actually committed shall be liable where the offence abetted was murder to imprisonment for life or any less period and in the case of abetment of any other offence to imprisonment for a period not exceeding one-half of the longest period to which a person committing that offence might be sentenced or to a fine not exceeding one-half of the maximum fine which a person committing that offence might be sentenced to pay.

Illustrations

A and B are fighting unlawfully; C and others hinder a police officer from stopping the fight. C and the others are guilty of abetting the fight.

A offers B $10 to assault C. A is guilty of abetting an assault on C.

A encourages B to break and enter a shop. If B is discovered and arrested while attempting to do so, A will be liable on a charge of abetting to imprisonment for three and a half years, one-half of the longest sentence that can be imposed for housebreaking. If B actually completes the offence of housebreaking, A is liable to 7 years' imprisonment.

9 Jurisdiction.

Whoever abets an offence shall be punishable in the Supreme Court or in the Magistrate's Court according as he would be punishable if he had committed that offence.

10 Trial.

An abettor may be tried before with or after a person abetted and although the person abetted is dead or is otherwise not amenable to justice.

11 Proof.

Every person who counsels, incites or procures another to commit an offence which that other afterwards commits is an abettor of that offence although it may be committed in a different manner from that which was counselled.

Illustration

A incites B to murder C by shooting him. B commits the murder by poisoning C. A is an abettor of B's crime.

12 Abettor deemed a party to any offence committed as a result of his counselling.

Every person who counsels, incites or procures another to commit an offence is a party to every offence which that other commits in consequence of such counselling, inciting or procuring and which the person counselling, inciting or procuring knew or ought to have known would be likely to be committed in consequence of such counselling, inciting or procuring.

Illustrations

A incites B to steal from C. B in attempting to do so is discovered by C and murders him. Here A is guilty only of abetting theft and not of abetting murder.

shall be liable to imprisonment for any period not exceeding 2 years.

If upon the trial in the Supreme Court of any person against whom any act or omission is charged as an offence, evidence is given that such person at the time when such act or omission took place was insane within the meaning of section 17 hereof, then if it appears to the jury that he was so insane as aforesaid at the time when such act or omission took place the jury shall return a special verdict that the accused is not guilty because he was insane at the time when he did the act or made the omission.  - (a) by an unlawful act; or
 - (b) by omission without lawful excuse to perform or observe towards such person any legal duty; or
 - (c) by the commission of an unlawful act combined with the omission of a legal duty; or
 - (d) by causing a person through threats or fear of violence or through deception to do an act which causes that person's death; or
 - (e) by wilfully frightening a child or sick person.
- (2) Culpable homicide is either murder or manslaughter.

87 When culpable homicide amounts to murder.

- (1) Culpable homicide is murder in any of the following cases—
 - (a) if the offender intended to cause the death of the person killed; or
 - (b) if the offender intended to cause to the person killed any bodily injury which the offender knew was likely to cause death and was reckless whether death ensued or not; or
 - (c) if the offender intending to cause the death of one person or intending to inflict on one person bodily injury likely to cause death and being reckless whether death ensues or not kills a different person by accident or mistake although he does not mean to hurt the person killed; or

- (d) if the offender for the purpose of accomplishing any unlawful object does an act which he knows or ought to have known to be likely to cause death and thereby kills any person even though he may not have desired to hurt any person in order to effect his object.
- (2) Culpable homicide is also murder in each of the following cases whether the offender does or does not know that death is likely to ensue—
- (a) if he means to inflict grievous bodily injury for the purpose of facilitating the commission of any of the offences mentioned in subsection (3) of this section or for the purpose of facilitating the flight of any person who has committed or attempted to commit any of such offences and death ensues from such injury;

88 When culpable homicide is manslaughter only.

A person who commits culpable homicide shall be deemed to be guilty of manslaughter and not of murder if any of the following matters are proved on his behalf; namely—

- (a) that he was deprived of the power of self-control by such extreme provocation given by the other person as is mentioned in section 89 hereof; or
- (b) that he was justified in causing some harm to the other person, and that in causing harm in excess of the harm he would have been justified in causing, he acted from such terror of death or grievous hurt as in fact deprived him for the time being of the power of self-control; or
- (c) that in causing the death he acted in the belief in good faith and on reasonable grounds that he was under a legal duty to cause the death or to do the act which he did.

(Amended by Act 13 of 1978.)

89 What matters amount to extreme provocation.

The following matters may amount to extreme provocation to one person to cause the death of another person namely—

- (a) an unlawful assault committed upon the accused person by the other person which was of such a kind either by reason of its violence or of accompanying words, gestures or other circumstances of aggravation as to be likely to deprive any person of ordinary character being in the circumstances in which the accused person was, of the power of self-control;
- (b) the taking up by the other person at the beginning of an unlawful fight of an attitude manifesting an intention of manifesting instantly attacking the accused person with deadly or dangerous means or in a deadly manner;

 - (a) that he was not in fact deprived of the power of self-control by the provocation; or
 - (b) that he acted wholly or partly from a previous purpose to cause death or harm or to engage in an unlawful fight whether or not he would have acted on that purpose at the time or in the manner in which he did act had it not been for the provocation; or
 - (c) that after the provocation was given and before he did the act which caused the harm, such a time elapsed or such circumstances occurred that a person of ordinary character might have recovered his self-control; or
 - (d) that his act was in respect either of the instrument or means used or of the brutal manner in which it was used, greatly in excess of the measure in which a person of ordinary character would have been likely under the circumstances to be deprived of his self-control by the provocation.

- (2) Where the accused person in the course of a fight made use of any deadly or dangerous means against an adversary who had not used or manifested any intention of being about to use any such means against him, then if it appears that the accused person purposed or prepared to use such means before he had received any such blow or hurt in the fight as might be sufficient provocation to use means of that kind, he shall be presumed to have used the means from a previous purpose to cause death notwithstanding that before the actual use of the means he may have received any such blow or hurt in the fight as might amount to extreme provocation.

PART X. - OFFENCES AGAINST PROPERTY

143 Definition of theft.

Theft is the dishonest taking without any colour of right of anything (which by section 144 is declared capable of being stolen) with intent either—

- (a) to deprive the owner permanently of such thing, or
- (b) to deprive any other person permanently of any lawful interest possessed by him in such thing, and with the intention of converting such thing to the use of any other person without the consent of the owner or person possessing such interest therein as aforesaid. “theft” and “steal” shall be construed accordingly. (Amended by Act 9 of 1987.)

Explanations

If the article which the defendant is charged with stealing was taken by him either by mistake or in the honest belief that he had a right to it or with the full intention of returning it to its owner the defendant cannot be convicted of theft.

If the thing alleged to have been stolen was not moved by the defendant in the slightest degree from its place the offence does not amount to theft. Thus if A while opening a box to steal money contained in it and before moving any money from its place in the box becomes aware that he is being watched and desists and runs away he cannot be convicted of theft but may be convicted of attempted theft. If however A had taken some of the money out of the box and put it beside him on the floor he could be convicted of theft of that amount.

144 Things capable of being stolen.

- (1) Every animate thing which is the property of any person is capable of being stolen.
- (2) Every inanimate thing which is the property of any person is capable of being stolen:

Provided that—

- (a) it is moveable; or
- (b) it is capable of being made moveable and has been made moveable even though it has been made moveable only in order to steal it.

Explanations

A horse dog or fowl is capable of being stolen by reason of subsection one.

Money, a boat or coconuts lying on the ground are capable of being stolen by reason of subsection 2 paragraph (a). Coconuts growing on a tree, yams growing in the ground are capable of being stolen under subsection 2 paragraph (b) as soon as the coconuts are detached from the tree or the yams are dug up even though the detaching or digging was done by the thief in order to steal them.

- (a) if the value of the thing stolen does not exceed $500 to imprisonment for any period not exceeding 2 years; (Amended by Acts 13 of 1943, 13 of 1969 and 26 of 1984.)

- (b) if the value of the thing stolen exceeds $500 to imprisonment for any period not exceeding 7 years. (Amended by Acts 13 of 1969 and 26 of 1984.)

146 Whipping upon conviction in certain cases.

Whenever upon the conviction of any male person for theft or for any offence against sections 154, 155 and 173, the Court may, in its discretion, in addition to any sentence of imprisonment authorised under this Act, order the person so convicted to be whipped in accordance with the provisions of section 31 hereof. (Substituted by Act 9 of 1987.)

147 Taking things according to Tongan custom.

- (3) Any person mentioned in subsection (1) may be indicted and convicted whether the principal offender has or has not been previously convicted, or is not amenable to justice.
- (4) Any person who, without lawful excuse, knowing or believing the same to have been stolen or obtained in any way whatsoever under such circumstances that if the act had been committed in the Kingdom the person committing it would have been guilty of an offence, receives or has in his possession any property so stolen or obtained outside the Kingdom is guilty of an offence and is liable to the same punishment as if he had committed theft.

- (5) For the purposes of this section and of any other written law relating to receivers or receiving, a person shall be treated as receiving property if he dishonestly undertakes or assists in its retention, removal, disposal or realisation, or if he arranges to do so. (Substituted by Act 9 of 1987.)

It shall be lawful to insert in any summons charging theft a charge of receiving the stolen property or any part thereof knowing or believing the same to have been stolen and it shall be lawful for the court by whom such charges are tried to adjudge the defendant guilty either of stealing the property or of receiving the same or any part thereof knowing or believing it to have been stolen. Duty of District Officer.

- (2) Every District Officer upon delivery to him of any article which has been found shall cause the finding thereof to be proclaimed and if upon such proclamation being made the owner is not discovered the District Officer shall notify the police of the finding. If the owner is discovered within one month from the date of such notification to the police the District Officer shall deliver the thing found to him upon his paying the finder one-tenth of its apparent value. If the police fail to discover the owner within one month after receiving such notification as aforesaid the District Officer shall re-deliver the thing found to the finder and it shall become his absolute property. (Amended by Act 9 of 1987.)

- (3) Nothing in this section shall exempt a person from liability to punishment for stealing or receiving property knowing or believing it to have been stolen if his action amounts to either of such offences. (Amended by Act 13 of 1978.)

152 Explanation as to stealing of thing found.

A person who takes possession of a thing which appears to have been lost by another person is not guilty of stealing unless—

- (a) at the time of taking possession he knows who is the owner of the thing or by whom it has been lost; or
- (b) the character or situation of the thing or any marks on it or any other circumstances is or are such as to afford some indication as to who is the owner of the thing or the person by whom it was lost; or
- (c) it appears that the thing was not in fact lost but merely mislaid by being left by mistake in some place to which the owner would naturally return for it.

- (3) Where any person so charged as aforesaid declares to the Court that he received the articles in respect of which the charge is brought from some other person, or that he was employed as an agent or servant, or to convey the same for some other person, the magistrate shall if practicable cause to be brought before him every such other person and if necessary any other person through whose possession such articles have passed, and shall examine witnesses on oath in regard thereto, and if it appears to the magistrate that any person so brought before him has had possession of such articles and had reasonable cause to believe the same to have been stolen or unlawfully obtained, every such person shall be liable to imprisonment for any period not exceeding 3 months.
